

WOMAN AERONAUT FACES DEATH IN AIR

Parachute Fails to Release and Balloon Rises Ten Thousand Feet.

LANDS ON TOP OF WARD MEETING HOUSE

Some Miscreant Had Wired the Release Catch to Hold it Fast.

For at least ten minutes yesterday afternoon, Lady Iman, who, with her husband, Professor Wayne, are making daily race ascensions during the State Fair this week, was face to face with grim death at great heights above the ground. Her sad plight was due to her inability to work the "release" catch which held her parachute to the huge balloon, and which had been maliciously wired fast, so that it could not be operated, by some fiend in human form.

At least twenty thousand of the forty thousand persons who attended the fair yesterday witnessed the start of the balloon race, and when it became apparent that she could not release her parachute, the big bag going higher and higher in the air, they stood awe-stricken, expecting every moment to see her fall to certain death. She could be seen pulling, with all the strength she could muster, at the small release rope, but to no avail. Finally, when the balloon had reached a height of about two thousand feet, and was nearly two miles, and after her husband had its descent, her balloon lost its ascending strength and began to sink.

Makes Safe Descent.

As she came nearer and nearer to earth, the immense crowd stood breathless. Several times it looked as if the huge bag would turn upside down, and thereby let out all the hot air that it contained in it, and each time a sigh of horror and anguish was uttered. Fortunately it righted itself each time, and Lady Iman landed safely on the roof of the twenty-fourth ward meeting house, at First South and Eighth West streets. In landing, however, she fell to her knees, and bruised and scratched them considerably. Outside of these slight injuries, she suffered no bad effects from her harrowing experience. When the nervous little woman returned to the fair grounds in a buggy, her face beamed with smiles and she was given a most cordial reception. She wanted to congratulate her upon her safe return to earth, after her narrow escape from death. She says she will go up again today.

The balloon race, in which Lady Iman and her husband, Professor Wayne, compete daily is one of the features of the fair. A great throng of people gathered around the two big bags as they were being filled with hot air, and it is probable that while this process was going on, some person, possibly an aeronaut or a fanatic, possessed of envy, and a murderous intent in his heart, placed a thin piece around the "release" catch, which she had as to make it impossible for her to cut loose from her balloon. The two balloons shot upward from the ground at the same moment, Lady Iman on one and Professor Wayne on the other.

Parachute Will Not Release.

When at a height of about four thousand feet, Professor Wayne released his parachute from the balloon, and began his descent. Immediately afterward Lady Iman was seen to tug at the small release rope on her parachute. She pulled with all her strength and, as could be plainly seen after her descent, the rope cut her right hand. As she afterward explained, she tried to pull the kerchief around her hand, and hung her entire weight on the small rope. Her efforts to release her parachute were futile, and the balloon continued skyward. She, however, did not panic, and, although terribly frightened, calmly drifted down as the strength of the hot air in the bag gradually exhausted.

Soon after Professor Wayne cut loose from his balloon he saw and realized the plight of his wife. He paid little attention to guiding his own parachute, but kept watching his wife, with the result that he landed in a mass of electric light wires on Ninth West street, between North and South Temple streets, sustaining several burns and cuts on his body, arms, and legs. As soon as he disentangled himself from the wires and reached the ground, he was joined by his attendants in a buggy and they drove in the direction of his wife's balloon and parachute were drifting. She was taken from her landing place on the roof of the twenty-fourth ward meeting house to the fair grounds as quickly as possible. Her balloon was badly torn by striking the chimneys on the meeting house, and immediately upon their return to the fair ground she and her husband began to sew up the rents in the big bag.

Describes Perilous Trip.

When asked to describe her feeling when she found that she could not release her parachute from the balloon, Lady Iman, who is a pretty blonde of small stature, said:

"Well, it is hard to describe the feeling. If you have ever been in a position where you thought that death would come to you in the next instant you can imagine how I felt. I was frightened, but as I was helpless I could do nothing but wait until the strength of the hot air began to exhaust. When the bag began to descend I felt better, but I was fearful all the while that the hot air would go out too fast, and that I would be dashed to death. Fortunately, luck was with me, and I landed safely. In our work we face death every day, but we do not give it as much thought as the people who watch us. The 'release' catch was wired fast by some unknown person who desired to see me killed."

What Professor Wayne Says.

In speaking of his wife's escape from death, Professor Wayne said:

"Just as soon as I cut loose I saw there was something wrong with my wife's balloon, but I could do nothing. I examined the 'release' catch on her parachute and found it fastened tight with a small piece of wire in such a manner that she could not work it. I immediately acted was committed either by some aeronaut who envies us or work here, or by some fanatic. There are quite a few aeronauts in Salt Lake that feel that we have done them out of some work by accepting the engage-

PROVO'S FORMER MAYOR RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Special to The Tribune.
PROVO, Oct. 4.—The Hon. Thomas N. Taylor, ex-Mayor of Provo, has returned from a summer's vacation in Europe. While away he visited France, Germany, and England. Mr. Taylor was accompanied by his mother. They had a very enjoyable time and have returned home much improved in health. Mr. Taylor appears well enough to withstand a Democratic convention. Some people argue that he should be nominated for Mayor with Provo on one ticket, and Taylor on the other there would be a great mixup among the west and voters.

Provo News Items.
Special to The Tribune.
PROVO, Oct. 4.—Charles Archbold, who was operated on a few days ago for a misty jaw bone, is now able to be around.

George Chase, who had his right leg amputated because of the ankle and the knee, is now able to move about on crutches.

The Utah county school teachers and friends spent a very pleasant day at Geneva and on Utah lake last Saturday.

Mayor J. H. Frisby will be the Republican nominee for Mayor. He is the only Republican in the city, except, perhaps, Brother Al. Frisby, who resides. He was an ardent member of the Mormon church, and did a good deal of missionary work for the church in the old country. Only a granddaughter, living at Hamilton fort, in Iron county, survives. Funeral services were held from the first ward meeting house.

Death of a Pioneer.
Special to The Tribune.
SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 4.—Richard Phorne, one of Springville's oldest citizens, died at his home here this evening at 5 o'clock. He was 82 years old and had been in poor health for some time. The funeral will probably take place Monday, October 17. Mr. Phorne was born in Kirkland, Ohio. He came to Utah thirty-three years ago and settled in Springville. He was a prominent figure among the early settlers of the State and leaves a large family of children and grandchildren.

News of the Courts.
Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Oct. 4.—In the District court today a stipulation was filed by the plaintiff in the case of Charles A. Jones vs. Ogden City, et al., moving for the dismissal of the case. The motion was granted by the court and the record was cleared.

A complaint was filed in the District court this afternoon in which the Salt Lake and Ogden Railway company is the plaintiff and Joseph S. Peery, as executor of the estate of Charles Peery, deceased, is the defendant. The suit is for the purpose of condemning certain right-of-way in Weber county that is alleged to be necessary for the railway's advent into Ogden.

RENO, Nevada, Oct. 4.—No passenger trains are being taken to Tonopah and Goldfield on account of the railway strike. Tonight a mail train leaves Goldfield. Tomorrow the first mail for Goldfield for thirty-six hours will leave Reno for Goldfield, there to be transferred to the Tonopah and Goldfield road, on which the strike exists.

Criminal Cases Set for Trial.
Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Oct. 4.—The following setting of criminal cases has been made by Judge Howell in the District court: State vs. Fred Clark, burglary and grand larceny; case set for trial Monday, Oct. 7.

State vs. James Hay, grand larceny; arraignment had and defendant to plead on Monday, C. H. Shafer, forgery; defendant to plead Saturday, Oct. 5.

ment this week, and I have heard in an indirect way that several persons have said that if my wife and I get out of Utah alive we would be the first aeronauts to do so. On Thursday I found several knife cuts in my parachute, but said nothing about it. I have made ascensions for more than seven years, but never before have I ever had my parachute or that of my wife's tampered with."

S. R. RUSH TELLS OF BORAH TRIAL

Temper of People of Boise Strongly Against the Prosecution.

ALL THE EVIDENCE POSSIBLE WAS INTRODUCED

Why Judge Burch Was Assigned by Government to Case.

Judge M. C. Burch, of Washington, D. C., special United States Attorney, and Special United States Attorney S. R. Rush, of Omaha, who prosecuted the case of the government against United States Senator W. E. Borah, at Boise last week, arrived in Salt Lake Friday morning from the Idaho capital, spent the day here and left on the evening train for the East. Judge Burch taking the Overland Limited to Washington and Mr. Rush to the D. R. G. train for his home in Omaha. Mr. Rush, when seen at the Knutsford, where they were staying, was asked for his opinion of the Borah case and the result of the trial. "As a layman, I am not qualified to give an opinion," he said, "but I have the assurance that I shall not be misquoted. I have only this to say: 'An indictment had been returned against Senator Borah and ten other persons, none of whom except Senator Borah were on trial, and under the peculiar circumstances a trial seemed to be absolutely necessary to clear up the situation. The United States attorney, who was assigned to the case, was assigned to prosecute this case, and I directed to assist him. With a vicious lunge Williams tore from Wheeling's grasp and started down Main toward Second South street on the west side, with the detective in hot pursuit and yelling at pedestrians to stop Williams. In his flight Williams ran over several women and children and nearly stumbled Sheriff Henry of Provo over. Near Second South street Lieutenant Edward Santachi, stationed at Fort Douglas, stopped Williams and held him until the detective came up. Then Williams was marched to the police station.

Williams' pockets gave up only $5.25. Detective Wheeling says he saw him going through the pockets of a man thought to be a drummer and he charged him with grand larceny. He gave him a 30-day sentence and a good looking

WORD TAKES UNTIL MONDAY TO PLEAD

L. C. Word, caught in the act of picking Simon F. Beck's pocket of $50.40 at Main and First South streets Thursday afternoon, waived pleading to a charge of grand larceny until Monday to plead.

Policeman Howell, who allowed Word's companion to make his escape in the matter over which the arrest, received the following self-explanatory note from Provo Friday morning:

"You nearly landed me with Word yesterday. Goodbye, I'm gone."

WIFE DECLARES THAT HUSBAND DESERTED HER

After nearly twenty years of wedded life, Mrs. Mamie Woodman has instituted an action for divorce against her husband, James H. Woodman, on the grounds of desertion.

She says they were married in this city in 1888, and lived together as man and wife until about a year ago, when he abandoned her. Since that time, she says, he has made no provision for his family. She asks for a decree of divorce and the custody of the children.

Capitol Hill Paving.
The Board of Public Works held a meeting Friday morning for the purpose of opening bids on paving extension No. 18, which comprises the vicinity of Capitol Hill. The only bid submitted was made by Contractor P. J. Moran. As his bid exceeded somewhat the anticipated cost of the work, certain property owners objecting to the improvement. For this reason the contract was not let, the board deciding to lay the matter over until the next meeting, which will be held in two weeks. It is possible that the city will decide to limit the amount of paving in order to reduce the cost, or, if the matter is not settled by then, routine completed the work of the board. Several estimates were approved and bills allowed.

Visit of Former Resident.
Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, Oct. 4.—"Billy" Shuttler of Butte, an old-time resident of Ogden, dropped off in the Junction city today and he was here last, fourteen years ago. He was the guest for a few hours of George A. He is a business man of Butte and tells very depressing facts about the present conditions there.

WHEELING MAKES ANOTHER CAPTURE

Arrests Frank Williams, Who
He Declares Is a Pick-

COMPANION SUCCEEDS IN GETTING AWAY

Detective Asserts That He Saw
His Man Trying to Rob Car Passengers.

Detective Frank Wheeling, of the local police department, in the capture of a pickpocket giving the name of Frank Williams, Friday afternoon, added new laurels to his already efficient record as a criminal catcher. Incidentally he is spreading alarm and consternation among pickpockets in this section. His capture of L. C. Word Thursday afternoon and of Williams Friday afternoon, will breed such a fear in the breasts of the light-fingered gang that they will steer clear of Salt Lake for a time.

Williams was caught, then escaped, and was recaptured after a brief, sharp chase. His detection and arrest were effected in a similar way to that of Word the day before. Williams, with a companion, who escaped, was doing the "rush net," it is alleged, at Main and First South streets, on passengers boarding street cars for the Fair ground. Detective Wheeling's keen eyes detected the "rush net" and, with those of his companion, and, calling for Fred Redman to assist him, he dived into the crowd after his men.

Laying his hands on both men he informed them that they were wanted. Both resisted, but Detective Wheeling's tenacious grasp on Williams would not relax. Redman's man, however, escaped, and Williams emulated his companion's example while Detective Wheeling was looking back, after they were out of the crowd, to see what had become of Redman and his man.

With a vicious lunge Williams tore from Wheeling's grasp and started down Main toward Second South street on the west side, with the detective in hot pursuit and yelling at pedestrians to stop Williams. SAYS OLDER BOYS TOOK ALL HIS MONEY

Samuel Isom, Who Came From Pocatello to See Fair, Calls on the Police.

Samuel Isom, 14 years old, dressed plainly in bib overalls, with no coat, came all the way from Pocatello, Ida., Friday to see the fair. Sunday he was arrested by the police. Two boy companions, each older than he, who came with him, took his return railway transportation and all the money he had, $1.90, from him. He says. With a thirty-cent piece, which he carried, he appeared at the police station late Friday night and told Chief of Police McKenzie his story.

Isom said his father, who is William Isom, inspector for the Oregon Short Line railway at Pocatello, furnished him with transportation to Salt Lake and return. The other two boys, one of whom is named "Click" Morch, "—he can't know the name of the other—came with him. He rode the cushions, but his companions rode "blind baggage." When they alighted here his companions robbed him of his money and took his return railway transportation.

He was hungry, he said, and got work at a cannery factory, but quit when he had earned 15 cents, spending the money for candy, popcorn and the like. At night the pangs of hunger sent him again and he concluded to hunt up the police station.

The police are "taking" young Isom's story as a "case" of said Chief McKenzie late Friday telegraphed the Chief of Police at Pocatello to notify the boy's father of the lad's condition here.

About midnight Chief McKenzie received a telegram from the boy's mother explaining his story. She said he ran away from home and she would be after him Sunday morning. He will be held at the city jail until her arrival.

Excavator Tips Over.
What came near being a serious accident occurred in the Short Line yards, just a little south of the viaduct, Friday morning, where the grade is being cut down by the steam shovel. In moving a soft piece of soil the big machine tipped over on its side. The man operating the machine jumped to safety. The fire in the box was quickly extinguished and in an incredibly short time the wrecker and pulled the machine, back on to the track. The damage was nominal.

SAINT WITH THIRST RAISES A RUMOR

PROPRIETOR IS FORCED TO INTERFERE

As a Result Alma Greenwood
Has John Shafer, the Owner, Arrested.

Alma Greenwood of Fillmore, a big sister of Judge Joshua Greenwood of the District court, both prominent in the Mormon church, came to town Thursday afternoon to be in readiness to attend the conference of his church. He came near missing the second session Friday afternoon, however, because of the aftermath from an affray that approached a rough house in the Chesapeake restaurant on West Second South street at an early hour this morning, in which he took a prominent part, afterwards filing charges of assault against the proprietor, John Shafer. Greenwood's case was called in Judge, Wheeling's court Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, but was continued until Tuesday afternoon.

Greenwood came to Salt Lake with a well-developed thirst for liquid refreshment, but just what kind does not appear. About 1 o'clock Friday morning the saint, with his saintly halo, entered the Chesapeake restaurant and demanded food. Before he could be waited on he made a dash for the catsup bottle on his table, employees of the restaurant claim. The contents disappeared before his attacks and he obtained an empty bottle from another table and drained it. The operation was repeated two or three times and Shafer's attention was attracted to Greenwood's actions. Shafer says he remonstrated with Greenwood, but the remonstrances were of no effect. Then he decided to resort to sterner measures.

Shafer says he started towards Greenwood and the latter arose as if to fight him. Shafer went to strike a dish or so at Greenwood and followed the fusillade with fist blows. Greenwood then gave up his fierce attack upon the catsup and hunted up a policeman. Friday morning he swore out a warrant against Shafer and the latter's arrest followed.

Shafer claims that he acted in self-defense in assaulting Greenwood, as he believed him to be preparing to strike him. "The man either was drunk or crazy," said he.

JOSEPH NEARE, FORMER BELL BOY, SHOT IN SEATTLE

Joseph Neare, better known as the "pug-nosed kid," who was wanted here for a series of thefts committed at the Knutsford hotel, where he worked as a bell boy, was shot to death while resisting arrest by a detective in Seattle, Wash., ten days ago. The detective caught Neare in the act of robbing a residence and tried to apprehend him, but Neare resisted and was shot at the detective, who returned the fire and killed Neare instantly.

In Neare's short stay at the Knutsford as bellboy several valuable articles belonging to guests were missing from their rooms, among them being a seventeen-jeweled watch, a gold chain and charm. From the Knutsford Neare went to the Wilson, working nearly twenty days at the hotel. He went to San Francisco from here, then visited Seattle. At San Francisco he committed a series of thefts and was estimated to have netted him about $5000. Several thefts were committed at Seattle by Neare.

Detectives Shannon and Wilson were placed upon Neare's trail here, but he eluded them and disappeared. He was last seen in the city, he pawned the watch, chain and charm for $4 at a Third South street saloon here.

SWEDISH LUTHERANS HOLD CONFERENCE

Three interesting meetings Friday marked the second day of the sixth annual conference of the Swedish Lutheran church of the intermountain country now being held at the local Swedish Lutheran church at Fourth East and Second South. The attendance Friday was much better than that of Thursday, and it is expected that Saturday and Sunday will see hundreds of people from outside points at the conference. Two meetings will be held Saturday and three more Sunday will close the present conference.

At the meeting held Friday morning at 10 o'clock, missionary experiences were related, the feature of the session being a paper on "Missionary Work in the West," by Rev. O. J. Siljeström of Chicago. The women's branch of the church held their meeting in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, with pastors from outside points addressed those present on "Woman's Sphere and Her Work in the Church."

The annual festival and concert was held in the evening. Rev. A. Grundberg and Rev. A. H. Flanzén of Boise addressed the meeting. Music was furnished by the choir. Mr. and Mrs. Sandberg favored the audience with a duet on the piano and violin and Miss Alma Hansen of St. Paul played a piano solo.

HEALTHY BROTHER

United States Senator W. B. Heyburn arrived in Boise late last night. The Senator went to Caldwell today to attend the fair. He is looking much better than he did when last in Boise, the rest from Congressional labors having evidently materially aided in restoring his health. Tomorrow Mr. Heyburn will leave for Washington to resume his labors there.

According to a statement of Governor Gove, the State fish hatchery has been decided upon and will be constructed on a tributary of Silver creek in Blaine county, near Hay Park, near the Wood river branch of the O. S. L. R. R. Superintendent Robert Stiles and State Game Warden Stevens. Sixty acres of land are to be secured for the hatchery and thereon all kinds of birds will also be propagated. The Legislature appropriated $500 for the hatchery.
